HIS SKIN TURNED BLUE.

Man Employed in Chemical Works
Has Peculiar Affliction.

New York, June 12.—A singular case of discoloration of the human body was brought to the Flower Hospital to-night, when Joseph Pick, aged twenty-two, was rushed there by an ambulance surgeon, who thought him dying from gas poisoning. Pick's face was a purplish blue—the same color as is apparent in extreme cases of asphyxiation. At the hospital the man was stripped, and it was found his whole body was the same tinge as his face, but otherwise he had no symptoms of asphyxiation. His mother, Mrs. Louise Pick, said he was employed in a chemical factory, and that he had been slowly acquiring the queer bluish tinge. Gradually the bluish tinge had become more and more perceptible, and within the last two or three days it had crept up on his face. "It got so bad," she said, "that I was ashamed for him to go out during the day. This afternoon he begged, so I let him go out. Maybe now he will get some relief."

DIES WORRYING FOR WIFE.

Anxious Husband First Falls into a Twenty-eight-hour Sleep.

Altoona, Pa., June 12.—Worrying over the critical illness of his wife, Jacob J. Wilt, aged seventy, a civil war veteran, is dead, following a twenty-eight-hour sleep. Mrs. Wilt has been ill some weeks, recently undergoing a serious operation, and her condition greatly alarmed her husband. When Wilt came home from his work in the Pennsylvania shops Thursday evening he was exhausted, mentally and physically, and sank into a stupor, from which he could not be aroused, sleeping on into death.

PRINCE TO HASTEN HOME.

Fushimi Gets Cable Message Relating to Business Matters.

Boston, June 12.—Prince and Princess Fushimi, of Japan, who arrived here today, will cut short their visit to this country because of important dispatches from home concerning business matters, which were handed to the prince when he reached Boston. The party will leave Boston on Tuesday, going direct to Seattle, where they will sail for home. The intended trips to Niagara Falls and Chicago will be canceled. At noon Lieut. Gov. Frothingham welcomed the visitors in the name of Massachusetts. Several hours were spent by the party at amusements, and a luncheon was given by Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson in Brookline. The estates of Prof. C. S. Sargent and E. D. Brandegee in Brookline were inspected, and the flowers caught the eyes of the Japanese. The prince and princess will dine with Dr. Charles W. Eliot tomorrow and visit Harvard College, as well as some of the historical spots.

Ridder Meets the Kaiser.

Berlin, June 12.—Hermann Ridder, accompanied by Ambassador Hill, took luncheon to-day with the Kaiser at the Schloss. There were about twenty guests, including Foreign Minister von Schoen and the Greek Minister. After luncheon the Kaiser had a long talk with Mr. Ridder apart from the company.

Anti-Clericals Hold Parade.

Rome, June 12.—The anti-clerical demonstration, which was postponed June 5, was held to-day at Trastevere. Four thousand socialists, republicans and radicals paraded after violent speeches had been made, but they dispersed without doing any harm. The police and troops were ready for any emergency, but their services were not required.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

HEART AND HOME TALKS.

The Woman Who Is a Joy.

One kind of a woman there is who is a joy in the home, in business, wherever there is anything to which she lays her hands. It is a woman who is thorough. Thoroughness is such a rare quality, nowadays, that when one finds a person who is thorough, one feels this person ought to be put in a glass case and exhibited as wondrously precious and almost extinct. The objection to this course of procedure is that so much work and so many places are waiting for the thorough person that he can't be wasted in being exhibited. The man or woman who wants to be sure of holding down a job, of being in demand, can cultivate fewer special qualifications than thoroughness.

Many young people, particularly when they first start in business, just about half do things. What is the result? The work has to be done over. They might just as well do nothing. A little stock girl upon her first morning in a new position was told to brush off the women's rain coats. She took the whisk broom, gave the coats a "swipe," so to speak, across the shoulders, banged them a few times on the skirt part, and announced she had finished. Of course, such work is worthless. A girl when she performs a task should do it in such a way that her busy manager will know without looking at it that it is thoroughly done. In these days of rush and pressure in business the hurried hand wants those under him who will work so trustworthily that their work will require neither examination nor correction. What joy it is to find such a worker!

A busy house mistress had a man to paint a fence. She gave him careful instructions as to how it was to be done. When he finished he assured her he had been most careful to carry out her directions. She examined results. Here a strand of wire had been missed; there a quite a stretch where vines had overrun the fence. So far as practical results were concerned the work was worthless. The entire fence had to be gone over to correct the lack of thoroughness.

Nearly every one has had the same experience. Office boys and office girls half do their work. Clerks neglect this and that. Maids "black" things, as the housewife puts it. Everywhere is this lack of thoroughness. It is more honorable for the one who is not thorough not to undertake to do the work, for what they do perform is wasted.

Thoroughness is a winning card in the business world to-day. Children should be trained to be thorough, if parents wish their business careers to be a success. Boys and girls, and men and women, who are not thorough should take themselves in hand, if they want to insure success. It means money, for the thorough man or woman is hailed with joy wherever he or she goes. BARBARA BOYD.

MORNING CHIT-CHAT.

I shot an arrow into the air.

It fell to earth, I know not where;
 For, so swiftly it flew, the sight
 Could follow it in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air.

It fell to earth, I know not where;
 For, who has sight so keen and strong
 That it can follow the flight of song.

Long, long afterward, in an oak

I found the arrow still unbroke;

And the song, from beginning to end,

I found again in the heart of a friend.

—Longfellow.

"BUT nothing is wrong," argued the very young person, who was at just that particular stage of his youthfulness where he felt extremely old and worldly wise, "nothing is wrong unless it hurts other people. I have a perfect right to do that if it only hurts myself."

In the first place, no man can say of any act, "It hurts only myself." The arrow and the song, although lost to him who sent them, found a sure destination.

The ripples that the fall of the little pebble starts lap a distant shore. I have heard men speak lightly of the wedding ceremony, saying: "Can a few words said by a man make wrong right or the omission of them make the right wrong?"

"If I and the woman agree," says this specious arguer, "that we live together, and love and cherish each other until death parts us, and she shall have no other man nor I any other woman; and if we live up to that agreement, aren't we as much married as if we had had the wedding ceremony said above us?"

If you both live up to that vow, I admit that your relation is as right morally as if you had been legally married.

And yet I don't believe you have any right to do that. For there is a social as well as a moral side to life. There is man's duty to himself and his God, and also to his fellow-men.

You two might be strong enough to remain just as faithful to each other bound by no ceremony but your own as if you had gone through the legal forms. But there are other people about you who need the restraint of a legal marriage. Your example might lead them astray. You have no right to run that risk.

The man alone on a desert island is practically the only man who can say, "This act hurts no one but myself."

And in the second place you haven't any right to hurt yourself any more than to hurt any one else. To attain your highest development spiritually, mentally, and physically are just as much obligations laid upon you as to treat your fellow-men rightly.

Indeed, you may not say, "I have a perfect right to do this because it hurts no one but myself."

If you must do wrong, do not add to the doing of it the cowardice of such cheap justification. RUTH CAMERON.

Whole Wheat Gems—Mix two cupsful

of whole wheat flour with one teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of sugar.

Beat the yolks of two eggs light, add one cupful of milk to them, beating all the while. Add the milk and eggs to the flour, beat until smooth, and add one cupful of lukewarm water. When well beaten, add the whites beaten to a stiff foam; mix quickly, turn into hot greased pans, and bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes.

Frozen Souffle—Take three ounces of granulated sugar and six raw egg yolks whip slowly, warming over hot water while beating. When an almost solid foam, remove and cool the bowl. Mix in gently one pint of cream, whipped to a stiff foam, and one dozen lady fingers.

Cut in small pieces and dipped in sherry.

Turn into a wetted mold, cover tightly,

bind around a buttered cloth, and bury

in ice and salt for two hours.

Healthful Hints.

From the Philadelphia Star.

Daily massages and wringing of the hands increase their circulation and rejuvenates them. The hands, as well as the rest of the body, need exercise if they are to retain their youthful appearance.

Always wear shoes that are large enough if you wish to have pretty feet,

and the leather should be soft and pliable.

The foot, however, that slips about in a large shoe is as much likely to get disfigured as the foot that is pinched.

A good cure for slight headaches is to take a facial bath of cold water into which a few drops of sweet spirits of ammonia have been dropped. This has been a most refreshing and invigorating effect.

FROM WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW.

A young girl who had been missing from home for a while returned the other day with a story which was pitiful even when viewed in the cold light of censure. She had tangled her life by a hasty marriage, and with an alien who has apparently deserted her—a chance acquaintance at that. There was a welcome for her at home, but there is the publicity to face and the disgrace of being linked with a worthless man.

Why do girls do such foolish things? They have so many advantages in these days and so large a share of good looks that one would think that ordinary personal pride would keep them from such a fate. I am afraid that the mothers are being blamed, whether they deserve it or not. One thing is certain, no girl in her teens should be allowed to roam the streets at will and make chance acquaintances. Mothers should know something of their habits and their companions and use the maternal right to direct both.

The average girl can be trusted to the daylight, but the influences which grow at night are to be avoided. Curfew was always a good thing for womanhood, for none but women who are really capable of taking care of themselves choose to face darkness and its perils without escort. I have heard it said that no good woman is ever molested on the street at night, and it is not wholly true. Good women are safe when men are not so evil as to regard the sex as legitimate prey.

I saw an honorable, hard-working young woman knocked down by one of a trio of toughs who went through her pockets for plunder. She was a waitress, whose duties closed at 10 o'clock, and facing the darkness was a necessity in her case. But this, of course, is an occasional case, as is the insult which some respectable women have had to take from ruffians who parade the streets after dark.

It is appalling to note the ease with which acquaintances are acquired. A chance remark thrown at a girl or a group of girls is answered in kind and the thing is accomplished. Girls are on familiar terms with men of whom they know nothing. No wonder the wreckage in lives is stirring the humane to efforts for relief, but it is prevention that is needed—the watchfulness of mothers, the escort of fathers and brothers. Means of keeping girls at home should be devised; force will not do it. BETTY BRADEN.

LADIES' AND MISSES' BATHING SUIT.

Paris Pattern No. 3300

All Seams Allowed.

There is no greater pleasure than bathing. We have only to watch the crowds at the beaches and see how old and young enjoy the surf to be convinced of this fact. No matter where a woman goes for this sport she wishes to be becomingly gowned. It is no longer necessary for her to look a fright. The material most generally used for a bathing suit at present is brilliant.

This fabric has many advantages. It is light in weight and does not hold the water.

It does not cling to the figure, and its many pretty colors hold their own in fresh water or salt. For young ladies

nothing is prettier than a bathing suit of white, with trimmings of plaid, or of a solid color, such as light blue or brown, black, red, etc. For older women who wish something more sedate,

dark blue and black offer the best effects, and these in turn may be trimmed with plaid, dotted material, or with some bright-colored braid. The bloom-ers and waist are in one. The pattern is cut in 7 sizes, 22 to 44 inches bust measure. To make the suit in the medium size will require 3½ yards of material 44 inches wide.

Hamline Church Pastor Per-

CHILDREN'S DAY AT CHURCHES

H. S. Omohundro, President of Baltimore Conference League, Addresses Epworth Meeting on Christian Education, Which He Advises
 in Business Life—Other Features.

Children's Day exercises were held yesterday morning in many churches. At the Hamline M. E. Church, the Epworth League evening meeting was addressed by H. S. Omohundro, of Baltimore, president of the Baltimore Conference League, and at a special evening church service the chorus of the Washington Normal School sang. The sermon was delivered by Rev. R. W. Adams, of Schenectady.

Seven members of the primary department, in costumes representing different countries, were conspicuous in the Sunday school exercises, at which E. R. Rochester, the general superintendent, presided.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Guthrie, the pastor, conducted the baptismal services for a class of six infants, and received three new members into the school.

Other Programme Features.

Some other features of the programme were a recitation by David White, a solo by Ruth Walker, recitations by Lee Cokerille and Albert Freer, and a reading by Lulu Wright.

Mr. Omohundro talked at the Epworth League meeting about Christian education, and emphasized the religious need for men who in business and professional activities would apply the principles.

As president of the Conference League, he represented 15,000 Epworth League members.

The Hamline League expects to be represented by 200 on the forthcoming excursion of the Epworth League of the District to-morrow, leaving the wharf at 6:45 p. m. They will go on the steamer St. Johns.

Coins Religious Phrase.

"The key to the time lock of God's providence" was a phrase coined by Rev. Dr. Guthrie at the evening service as he reviewed the events of the day and complimented Mr. Adams for the sermon, in which Mr. Adams emphasized the point that Jesus first appeared after the resurrection to Mary Magdalene.

"If you men had been writing the account," said Mr. Adams, "you would not have said that. His first appearance to a woman; certainly not a Magdalene. If Shakespeare had been writing the account, he would have had him appear first to Pontius Pilate, saying, 'Behold the man!' and would further have made Pilate drop dead. But greater than the dramatic genius of Shakespeare, is the simple record telling that He first appeared to a woman. Woman has ever been the herald of Christ."
